

Introduction to Work Term Preparation (WTP)

Welcome to the Work Term Preparation (WTP) Course

Welcome to the Work Term Preparation (WTP100/200), a dynamic course designed to help you build the skills, knowledge, and confidence needed to navigate your career journey and succeed in today's evolving labour market.

Course Purpose

This course is part of Seneca's commitment to career education, helping students connect academic learning with real-world applications. Through this course, you will explore key career development concepts and apply them to your personal goals through reflection and knowledge checks at the end of each module.

Course Learning Outcomes

1. Review the key components and tools that will be used in the Work Term Preparation Course to ensure success.
2. Identify and communicate personal strengths, transferable skills and growth areas to better present oneself in application materials and/or interviews, and/or the workplace and when networking.
3. Develop tailored job application documents to professionally articulate relevant skills and experience to prospective employers.
4. Plan and prepare effective interview techniques and post-interview follow-up to acquire desired position.
5. Create a professional brand that accurately represents personal values, interests and character to effectively network.
6. Use different job search strategies and tactics to help diversify and improve employment outcomes.

Please review the course syllabus for more details pertaining to the course.

Course Format & Requirements

Delivered online and synchronously, the course allows flexibility in completing weekly modules. Each module includes activities, reflections, and knowledge checks.

Be sure to check Blackboard and your Seneca email regularly for updates from your Work-Integrated Learning (WIL) Co-ordinator.

The course is graded based on a Satisfactory (SAT) or Unsatisfactory (UN). You must successfully complete each of the 14 modules and pass each Knowledge Check with a passing score of 80% or higher to earn completion.

Note: All course requirements must be completed by Friday, October 23, 2026.
